

Dixie Highway Route Settled

In a letter dated May 4th from Rockcastle County Road Engineer, B. T. Moynahan, to H. E. Taylor of our city the following statement is made. "The Fiscal Court in session to-day designated the Madison-Rockcastle inter county seat road via Scaffold Cane. Madison has agreed to meet us at any point we designate. This should put a stop to the controversy. Mr. Toms assures me that this will meet with Mr. Terrill's approval.

"Recent developments make the outlook for a road over Scaffold Cane a certainty in the near future. We will probably let a grading contract on this road in the next thirty days."

Since it is impossible to please everybody as to the location of this local division of the road, every citizen should give up his opinion and stand to the agreement that Madison would meet Rockcastle at any point they chose. What we want is Dixie Highway. Berea is on the map and there to stay. Let every man stand to that which is best for all in general.

We are glad to state that by request of our local committee the state furnished wholly disinterested engineers, with Mr. Toms as chief, to thoroughly investigate and settle on the most desirable route to meet Rockcastle. The Scaffold Cane way was chosen as such.

IN OUR OWN STATE

Kentucky's road laws were further fortified last Friday by the Court of Appeals, which upheld the $300,000 bond issue voted in Pulaski county.

Methodists in conference in Louisville, including bishops, secretaries of boards and ministers of many cities, dedicated last Sunday the handsome new headquarters on Fourth street of the Board of Church Extension.

A final proposition for the adoption of last year's wage scale has been made by the Western Kentucky mine operators to the miners. A convention of the employees will be called to decide whether to accept.

Is 100 Years Old.

Mrs. Susan Bowen, who was 100 years old on May 5th, was a resident of Winchester until a short while ago, when she removed to Torrent. She retains her physical strength and mental faculties to a remarkable degree, making her own bed daily and assisting with the dish washing. She has outlived her husband and nine children. Mrs. Bowen has one brother, Walter Moore, living in Oklahoma, who is 93 years old.

Two Kentuckians Victims of Mexican Bandit Bullets.

Hudson Rogers, 17 years old, a private of Troop A, Fourteenth United States Cavalry, and a son of L. K. Rogers, well-known horseman of Lexington, was the victim of a Mexican bullet in the handit raid Saturday morning at Glenn Springs, Texas. News of the death of the soldier boy was received in a telegraphic communication from Colonel Frederick W. Sibley, in command of the Fourteenth at Alpine, Texas.

Coincident with the news, came the report that the body of Winfield Mills, who has worn the army uniform of Uncle Sam for more than twenty-seven years, and who was a cousin of Mrs. Rogers, was expected to arrive in Danville Sunday from Columbus, N. M., where he was killed last week while on border duty with his regiment.

More Roads

According to information received, 29 counties of this state have voted bonds to the amount of $5,725,000.00. In addition to the above figures bonds will be voted on within the next 30 days by 11 counties to the amount of $1,870,000.00. This amounts to over seven and one-half million dollars in 39 counties, and will build and improve approximately 1,500 miles of road or enough to cross the state at its widest point five times.

Progress Being Made on the Midland Trail

F. C. Merrill, who is "logging" the "Midland Trail" the transcontinental auto route, arrived in Frankfort Monday from the West. Mr. Merrill came through Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana and Kentucky eastward.

The Midland Trail from Louisville leads eastward over the Dixie and Jackson Ways and the Boone Trail through Shelbyville and Frankfort, thence to Versailles, Lexington, Winchester, Mt. Sterling, Owingsville, Morehead, Olive Hill and Catlettsburg, then crosses into West (Continued on page five.)

U. S. NEWS

The Hollis Farm Loan Bill, embodying a plan for establishing a system of rural credits, passed the Senate last Thursday 58 to 5. The five negative votes were cast by Republicans.

The convention of anthracite miners at Pottsville, Pa., voted to accept the agreement, recently reached by a joint wage committee, which includes an increase, eight-hour day and recognition.

Returning from the Buenos Aires meeting of the International High Commission, Secretary McAdoo, of the Treasury, said he found Americanism in high favor and a mutual desire for a merchant marine and Pan-American railroad.

WILSON ACCEPTS NO CONDITIONS

Reserves Right to Treat With Britain Separately.

GERMANY PUT ON PROBATION

Secretary Lansing Explains Why the United States Cannot Discuss With Berlin Matters Pertaining to Relations Between U. S. and Britain.

Washington, May 9.—President Wilson has sent a note to the German government, accepting its declaration of abandonment of illegal submarine warfare and rejecting the suggestion that the United States regard this abandonment as conditional upon Great Britain's action with respect to the blockade.

The note is courteous in tone, but firm and definite. It is intended to remove all doubt on the part of the imperial government as to the position the United States has taken.

Secretary Lansing issued the following statement explaining why the United States cannot discuss matters pertaining to the relations between this government and Great Britain with the imperial government:

"The greater part of the German answer is devoted to matters which this government cannot discuss with the German government. The only questions of right which can be discussed with that government are those arising out of its action or out of our own and in no event those questions which are the subject of diplomatic exchanges between the United States and other countries.

"The essence of the answer is that Germany yields to our representations with regard to the rights of merchant ships and noncombatants on the high seas and engages to observe the recognized rules of international law governing naval warfare in using her submarines against merchant ships. So long as she lives up to this altered policy we can have no reason to quarrel with her on that score. Though the losses resulting from the violation of American rights by German submarine commanders operating under the former policy will have to be settled, former policy will have to be settled.

"While our differences with Great Britain cannot form a subject of discussion with Germany, it should be stated that in our dealings with the British government we are acting, as we are unquestionably bound to act

Dr. A. F. Cornelius of the American Sanitary Commission Returns

After Rendering a Year's Valuable Service for Suffering Humanity in the War Zone in Serbia

The picture above is that of Dr. Albert F. Cornelius, one of our fellow citizens, who volunteered his professional services for suffering humanity in the war-stricken zone. It all meant no little sacrifice and risk on his part but joy in service rendered. It is certainly a pleasure to listen to his story first-hand, both in public and in private conversation. He is full of information relative to the sections of the war zone where duty called him.

We here give a short sketch of his early career in order that those who may read it shall have a deeper appreciation of the good deeds performed in this time of dire need.

He was born in Laurel County, Ky., February 21, 1886, and in early childhood came to Berea with his parents where he grew up under the influence, educationally, of the free school and Berea College. In June 1906, he began the practice of medicine here, during the time his father, Dr. P. Cornelius, was abroad. After that he went to the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, practicing in Hyden, Leslie county, and later in Letcher county, where he was employed by the Consolidated Coal Company as their physician. From this work he went to Boston to further his preparation where he became engaged in the public health service; taking lectures and a special course at Harvard. In all this preparatory work he showed skill and a living interest in his chosen line.

The call came to him, as a member of the American Sanitary Commission, for service in Serbia to fight the awful scourge of typhus that was raging in that part of the war zone. He, in company with a number of other men of his profession, sailed from New York, May 17, 1915, and after weeks of rough sea life arrived in the field of action. The scourge of typhus was well under control when they arrived and their work became that of improving the sanitary conditions of the prison camps and caring for the wounded as they came from the battlefields. In October he joined an English hospital corps which took him to the danger line and in several instances heard the whir of bullets which went clear of their mark.

Many were the trying circumstances in this campaign, of which words are inadequate to express. Duty held him in Serbia, Macedonia and Bulgaria where the need was greatest, till the 17th of February when they made their way north, doing service in the principal cities, passing through Petrograd and on north through the north route, via Finland and Norway, thence to London, England, and to his native land, arriving at New York, April 27th, within a few days of the date of sailing a year ago.

The Doctor is quite optimistic over the situation and thinks good will come out of all the turmoil that has been going on among the European countries. He emphasizes the good treatment and the appreciation rendered on the part of both belligerents for the service which he had the privilege of rendering.

We are grateful for his safe return and are proud that one of our citizens and fellow-townsmen has had so great a part in such important work for humanity.

KAISER SENDS FOR VON BEULOW

Big Event Pending, Is Believed In Europe.

MAY MEAN PEACE PLANS

Prince Responds to Hurry Call From the Kaiser For a Personal Interview of Extreme Importance—Many Theories Advanced For Conference.

London, May 9.—Prince Bernhard von Buelow, the former imperial German chancellor, at present looms large on the political horizon of Europe.

The only man living who has ever dared to extort from his imperial master a pledge of greater discretion in the discussion and conduct of the German empire's affairs, is now speeding in a special train toward the great general army headquarters, in the field, in response to a hurry call from the Kaiser, who has bidden him, it is reported, to a personal interview "of extreme importance."

The prince has been the greater part of the past year in Switzerland, notably in Luzerne, Zurich and Berne. It is at the latter city that, according to a dispatch, the imperial invitation of a hurried visit to headquarters reached him. Dispatch stated that the prince was "leaving for Berlin," but a later message from The Hague, brought the news of the call from the emperor.

Three theories were advanced in well-informed circles here with reference to the possible purpose of the conference between the Kaiser and the hero of the famous "Kaiser crisis" of 1908. They are:

First—That Prince von Buelow is to take over the governmental reign of the empire by resuming his former office of imperial chancellor, succeeding Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg.

Second—That he is to be entrusted with an important mission in behalf of the bringing about an opening for peace negotiations with the allies, probably through the medium of a neutral power.

Third—That he is to be sent to the United States on a mission from the Kaiser to President Wilson.

In connection with the last theory it is also suggested that the prince may go to Washington as German ambassador to the United States, it being pointed out in some quarters, that Count von Bernstorff's position has become somewhat embarrassing during the long course of the submarine controversy and that this embarrassment has been added to in no considerable degree by the recent seizure of certain papers in the New York office of the former secretary to Captain Franz von Papen, the recalled German military attaché.

Rumors of all kinds have been rife of late concerning Prince von Buelow. Private dispatches from Berlin said he was to resume the imperial chancellorship, while other advices were to the effect that he was to take the place of Dr. von Jagow as foreign minister.

It has been for many months an open secret that the prince, while in Switzerland, was engaged in private and informal negotiations with certain high officials of other powers in behalf of peace, though he has himself steadfastly denied the report.

PRINCE VON BEULOW

To Confer With Kaiser on Matter of Great Importance.

does more for Berea than The Citizen when it comes to boosting. Why not line up and become a booster and see your business grow to your own satisfaction and your neighbors?

WORLD NEWS

The German answer to the demands of the United States, regarding the use of submarines, has been received. Germany agrees to stop torpedoing passenger and freight liners without due warning and sufficient time for passengers and crew to make their escape. This has been the requirement of international law and is all the United States has contended for.

The German note seeks, in yielding to the demands of the United States, to place upon this country the responsibility of forcing England to stop her violations of international law. Though England's acts have been annoying, they have not led to the destruction of human life and therefore the United States has sought a settlement from Germany first. Now the way is clear to push more strongly our protests against England's violations of law and neutral rights.

Lord Robert Cecil, in behalf of the English Foreign Office, takes exception to Germany's statement regarding England's blockade as a starvation measure. He calls attention to the inconsistency of the clauses in the note, which suggests a hungry population in Germany, and the statement of the German Chancellor before the Reichstag in which he ridiculed the idea of England's ability to seriously affect the food supply of Germany.

The insurrection in Ireland has been put down but it has led to the retirement of Augustine Barrill from the Cabinet, where he held the position of Secretary to Ireland. He appeared to favor a policy of leniency, which had previously been fitted to the situation, but which was decidedly out of place in dealing with such a condition as had arisen in Dublin.

The National Geographical Society calls attention to the large extent of territory that France has recovered since the early invasion of the Germans in the beginning of the war. This territory covers an area of more than two thousand and five hundred square miles, including some large and important cities noted for historic associations as well as for manufactures and commerce.

The conference of General Scott and General Obregon, the Mexican Minister of War, seems to have been more effective than had been expected. They have practically arrived at an agreement which will allow the American troops to remain in Mexico and pursue their purpose more fully. There are limitations to the extent of the American search and to the duration of it, but this is compensated for by the use of the railroads and other concessions.

American troops in Mexico have won another victory over the bandit followers of Villa. After a hard march of 26 miles they succeeded in surprising a band, and in the engagement which followed killed 42 Mexicans, without suffering any loss themselves. Such victories do much to discourage the opposition.

The use of American capital in opening up production in Mexico and resuming industry is being favored by Mexican authorities as a good way to break up the spirit of the revolution. Idleness of the population is regarded as a great cause of unrest and lawlessness.

The bill to withdraw American sovereignty from the Philippine Islands did not pass Congress, and there is likely to be a good deal of opposition to the measure. Many of the younger Philipinos themselves do not favor it and are making their point of view better known and understood in the United States.

OPEN AIR MEETING

The second of the series of open air meetings was held Sunday afternoon on Twin Mountain. This meeting was led by Professor Messner. Miss Sinclair led the music. Everyone was amply repaid for their walk.

The place for the next meeting will be announced later.

Y. W. C. A.

The meeting of the Young Women's Christian Association Sunday night was led by Miss Myrtle Farley on "Community Work." She continued the story of her work at Ages, which she began several weeks ago. The idea of social service naturally appeals to every young woman. This story of the work of one of their fellow members was of great interest to the members of the Y. W. C. A. By unanimous vote Miss Farley was asked to continue her talk at a later date.

Y. M. C. A.

The Young Men's Christian Association met on the lawn in front of the library. The meeting was led by Dr. Albert Cornelius, who has just recently returned from Serbia. He gave an interesting talk concerning his work in that country and the conditions he found there.

Dr. Cornelius is full of information concerning the southern war zone and he shared it with his hearers very generously. His descriptions were especially clear and vivid. Many citizens of the town were present, there being about three hundred and fifty present. Look for good things and interesting speakers in the Y. M. C. A. We always have them.

FIELD DAY

The annual track meet, which was to have been held last Thursday was held Friday instead, the weather being inclement Thursday. The meet began promptly at 9 o'clock. Every event was closely contested, though no great records were made. This was one of the most successful meets yet held in Berea. The medal for the greatest number of individual points was won by Galbraith of the Academy.

The winners of the different events were:

50-Yard Dash—Galbraith—6 s.
100-Yard Dash—Galbraith—10 2-5 s.
220-Yard Dash—Roberts—24 2-5 s.
High Jump—Spink—5-1 1-4
Broad Jump—Powers—19-9
Mile Run—Childs—4-56 1-3
Hammer—Britt—88 ft. 6 in.
Pole Vault—Spink—10 ft.
Shot Put—Britt—34 ft. 4 in.
Discus—Britt—102 ft. 6 in.
220-Yard Hurdles—Galbraith—29 1-5 seconds.

440-Yard Dash—Crouch—55 1-5 s.
Half-Mile Run—Childs—2-8 3-5.
One Mile Relay—College.

With this galaxy of athletes Berea will easily hold her own at the State meet.

In the afternoon there was a volley ball game between the girls, representing the Blues and the Reds. After this one of the most thrilling games of baseball of the year was played by the College and Vocational teams, the former winning by a score of 6 to 5.

The game was very close and hotly contested. The score was 5 to 4 in favor of the Vocational team until the last half of the ninth inning. At this time the College men rallied and won before a man was out. These teams will play the championship series. We are expecting some real baseball before the season ends.

VOLUNTEER BAND

The regular weekly meeting of the Student Volunteer Band Sunday afternoon was held on Doctor Roberts' lawn. Mrs. H. M. Washburn led the meeting. She gave a very interesting account of the work among the natives of Africa, of the great need for more missionaries, and of the great opportunities for service. It brings all of our local Volunteers to a keener recognition of the meaning of their life work to meet and converse with a person direct from the field. This meeting was very instructive and helpful.

$89 Per Hour

RECEPTION TO LITERARY SOCIETY

Last Wednesday night Doctor and Mrs. B. H. Roberts entertained the College literary societies at a reception in the Parish House. This was to have been held on the Roberts' lawn, but, on account of inclement weather, it was taken to the Parish House. Miss Lillian Newcomer gave a number of very interesting readings. The remainder of the evening was spent in singing songs and playing the Virginia Reel and other games. Very delicious refreshments were served and the affair was brought to a close at a seasonable hour. Through this reception our college literary societies were brought together and made to sympathize more with each other in their common endeavor.

COLLEGE vs. FOUNDATION

In a loosely played game of baseball Monday afternoon the College team defeated that of the Foundation Schools by the decisive score of 15-4. The game was exceedingly slow and uninteresting. The Foundation team was able to put up very little defense. The final series for the championship begins Monday a week. We are to expect real sport.

"WALPURGESNACHT"

Monday night the students of the German Department under the leadership of Miss Welsh went to Ruckers' Knoll north of Berea, for lunch and an evening's outing. After supper William Eccles, in representation of Mephistopheles, took charge of the festivities and a short program was rendered.

Everyone was costumed to represent some well-known character in German literature. When the program was concluded torches were lighted and the return journey made. The parade, with torches, through the streets was especially pleasing. German songs were sung as the column advanced. After serenading several dormitories, all dispersed. There are about sixty people in the German Department.

This event was in celebration of "Walpurgisnacht" and will cause this good day to be long remembered in Berea.

CHAUTAUQUA A GREAT POPULAR EDUCATOR

Impartial Discussion of Vital Subjects in World Crisis.

Chautauqua Institution, the pioneer in summer assemblies, summer schools and home reading courses, maintains its leadership in popular education by a rare combination of intellectual training, stimulating platform events and healthful recreation. Its public program again offers at a time of world crisis impartial discussion of vital subjects by authoritative leaders of public opinion.

More significant even than the individual addresses by notable men are the series of one week each on current political, social, economic and religious problems. Topics for such discussion are the defense of the nation, the Americanization of our foreign inhabitants, the church in its task of remaking a war-cursed world, the elevation of American business to a profession, with professional breadth of training and professional loftiness of ethics; the messages of art and antiquity to modern practical life and taxation in the light of wisdom and justice. Each of the eight weeks from June 29 to Aug. 27 is devoted to some one major interest, that of Aug. 7-12 being music, with the well known Russian Symphony Orchestra engaged to supplement the regular musical resources of the institution. The names of many educators and public men of the first rank appear in announcements just issued. Eight preachers of national reputation will give the eight Sunday morning sermons, and there are many other religious exercises.

The Chautauqua Summer Schools offer something over 200 courses in their catalog, just issued, and list over a hundred instructors, many of them prominently connected with great universities during the college months.

With its altitude of 1,400 feet, its twenty mile lake and the climate for which the region is famous, there has always been at Chautauqua the greatest variety of outdoor sports and recreations. The list now includes golf, motorboating, tennis, roque, bowling, gymnastics, track athletics, sailing, rowing and fishing. Somewhat amusing to note, the prospectus for the year, just issued, indicates the pitching of horseshoes as one of the pastimes that arouse most enthusiasm among substantial business men and dignified members of the professions. It is only a step back to boyhood after all. Under almost ideal conditions for health, convenience and enjoyment, at a place like Chautauqua every member of the family finds a satisfying home for the summer.

Academy Column

Quite a few Academy students attended the Christian Endeavor State Convention at Lexington last Saturday and Sunday, among them being Fred Evans, Fred Ford, McCoy Franklin, and Joseph Wilson.

Song is the language of the soul. If we are joyful, it is a means of sharing our joy with others. If we are sorrowful, we can find solace in thus unburdening our hearts.

But song is just as valuable for its unifying and strengthening effect on a people. That the Scotch Highlanders were so formidable and hard to conquer, has been attributed, in part, by some writers to the fact that they kept their spirits strengthened and aroused by their fierce war songs. If we, as a department, wish to be just as strong and unconquerable; if we wish to be just as closely united as they, let us enter wholeheartedly into the Academy songs. Not only the department, but each individual will profit by it.

Why don't we ever see the flag on the flag pole?

FIELD DAY

Nothing succeeds like success. After having made a success of the Academy Field Day, the Academy made a success of the Berea Field Day. For the fourth time in the last four years the Academy carried away the honors. Out of a possible 126 points we annexed 62, one short of half the total; and of the fourteen blue ribbons, Academy men possessed seven. Galbraith won the gold medal for individual work, winning three firsts and two seconds, or a total of 21 points, a majority of 6 over his closest rival. Spink came third with 14 points to his credit.

AELIOIAN

Saturday night, May 6, the Aelioian Literary Society held their annual open meeting in the Academy Auditorium. The appreciative element of the Academy faculty, students, and sympathizers attended.

The following program was rendered:

STIDHAM DIES

Harrison Stidham, a student of the Normal School, died recently from a complication of ailments. When he was taken away the students marched in a body with Dean McAllister to the station where a committee of young men remained until the 4 o'clock train passed. Hobart Gomis, Dewey Polly and Mr. Stidham, Harrison's father, who was present when his son died, accompanied the body to the home in Letcher County.

NORMAL AND FOUNDATION

Last Saturday afternoon a spirited game of baseball was played between the Normal and Foundation teams. It was very interesting because no one could tell just who was going to win. Supper held at the seventh inning, but neither side would give the game over without winning it, and as a result it was fought to a finish, while the other folks enjoyed their delicious meal. At the close the score was 15 to 11 in favor of the Normal.

The Normal students and teachers enjoyed the interesting class discussions conducted by James Speed in Upper Chapel and at the Training School during his stay in Berea. Mr. Speed has had much valuable experience as teacher and writer which adds force to his refreshing talks. We hope he may visit us again soon.

The Philomathean Literary Society gave a social Monday night, to the members and previous members of Union Literary Society. The evening was devoted to the playing of games which was greatly enjoyed by all present.

Hobart Richardson of the Normal, preached at the Christian Church, Sunday. He was assisted in the meeting by a Quartette of Normal boys.

Vocational Column

The Junior Class gave a formal social in honor of President and Mrs. Wilson (Dean and Mrs. Clark). Ex-secretary and Mrs. Bryan (Prof. and Mrs. Baird), and President Frost (Prof. Whitehouse). This was a real formal social all the way through. The Juniors proved themselves capable of conducting such an occasion. Every one was gratified with the dignity and success with which it was carried on.

GIRLS EARN MONEY AT HOME

Some girls seem to think the only way to earn money is by going to a city and there clerk in some store, usually a ten-cent store, or probably be a stenographer or a nurse if they have money enough to complete one of these courses, but they rarely, rarely, ever dream of staying at home and earning money.

If you should ask a young lady why she did not earn a living at home where she could be protected, instead of taking her chances in a friendless city, she would say "Why me stay at home? What is there to do here? People don't do anything here but farm and you know I can't farm." And this is not an exceptional case, but rather it is the usual case.

Young girls leave home in order to earn money to support themselves so they can dress nicer and neater and have more social intercourse than they can have on the farm. And right here I would like to mention some ways in which a girl can earn money and stay at home.

At nearly every home there is some ground that is not in use, which the girl can secure just for the asking as her father likes to see her interested in something on the farm; and she can have her father or brother prepare this ground for planting and she can plant beans, peas, tomatoes, onions and all kinds of vegetables and cultivate them in spare moments and when

Foundation Column

Measles has been making inroads into our number of students. Some twenty have been in the hospital. All have done nicely and we hope that the scourge will soon be over. We do not consider measles to be dangerous if properly cared for and with good nursing the patient soon recovers. It means a loss of about two weeks of school, but that can be sacrificed rather than not have measles while young and vigorous.

The Rev. Mr. Knight gave the Eighth Grade, first and second division classes, a good talk on Sunday school work. Our students all like to listen to him.

In the track meet Devine and Tenter took part for the Foundation. Devine took third in one event and Tenter second in another.

In the baseball game Saturday the Normal team defeated the Foundation by a score of 17 to 11. A little mis-judgment in the choice of men at the first lost the game for us. The feature of the game was a one-hand running catch by Royce for Foundation. The Normals won because of errors by the Foundation School and not by earned scores. Johnson pitched well at all times, but hits fell safe where there ought to have been a man waiting. There will be another game a little later and we hope for a better score.

Several of our people attended the Christian Endeavor Convention at Lexington Saturday and Sunday. Professor and Mrs. Edwards, Misses Ritscher, Powell, Morrison, and Messrs. Leask and Rackley attended. They report a very good time and a fine convention.

Mr. Rice took his Sunday school class of Eighth Grade boys out to the mountains Sunday and Monday. These are great nights to spend on Indian Fort, and the boys had a fine time.

Several of our students walked out to the top of Twin Mountain for the open-air service Sunday afternoon. Other departments were there, but ours outnumbered all others combined. We wish more students would take advantage of these Sunday afternoon walks and besides hear some good talks. All who attend enjoy the service.

H. L. Robbins, a former Berea student in the Foundation and Vocational departments, writes Berea friends that he is located at Seutter, Out. Seutter is a postoffice on Pelee Island, in Lake Erie, 20 miles from Sandusky. For several years Berea boys have gone there to work where they get good wages and have valuable experiences. Robbins went there two or three years ago to work, and last fall married a young lady on the island and is now doing well as postmaster at Seutter and also is running a farm.

Miles Moore and Thomas Galtoun recently went to Pelee Island, where they will be employed for the summer.

they are ripe she can sell part of them and can the rest she has left and sell it at a neat profit to the grocer, who will be glad to get the canned goods without so much trouble as he usually has in hauling them from the depot. And she can make all the jellies and preserves she can have time for from the fruit that is wasted or fed to the pigs on the farm. And if the local stores don't need all the canned products there are plenty of people in town or the grocers in town who will take all that she can offer.

And another way is to raise poultry, which she can do at the same time she raises her vegetables if she wants to keep real busy. If she intends to raise poultry she should begin early in the spring, just secure some eggs, and if she has no incubator, borrow a few hens from mother to begin with. It takes very little time not more than one and a half hours each day to care for the little chicks, and then if she is industrious, she will have a nice bunch of fivers for the spring market, for which she will get a good price, and I will suggest that she buy more hens and raise more chickens with this money, as it is very profitable, and she need not confine herself to the raising of chickens alone, as turkeys are very profitable and not much more trouble to raise. And if the social conditions are bad (which they usually are) she can organize girls' clubs and also encourage the boys along this line and plan church entertainments, socials and many other things that will keep her busy.

These are only a few of the many ways in which a country girl can earn money and be happy and stay right at home.

A Romance of the Bear Tooth Range

By HAMLIN GARLAND

Copyright, 1914, by Hamlin Garland

SYNOPSIS

Wayland Norcross, an eastern youth seeking health in Colorado, meets Berse McFarlane, called Berrie, typical ranch girl, daughter of the supervising ranger of Bear Tooth forest.

Berrie is greeted by her lover, Cliff Belden, a cowboy, supposed to be interested in a saloon at Meeker's Mill, where Norcross is bound. Berrie guides Norcross to his destination.

A shower intercepts them and the girl gives the youth her raincoat. There is a rough element at Meeker's, and Norcross chooses Landon, the ranger, as his companion. Landon loves Berrie.

They climb the high, rough trail and only make camp when Wayland is on the point of collapse. Night in the open charms Wayland.

Cliff notices Berrie's interest in the tentfoot and warns him away. He also takes his betrothed to task. She resents this and breaks their engagement.

Wayland blunders repeatedly. The supervisor goes after the horses which have wandered off. He is detained. Norcross arranges to sleep outside and Berrie inside a tent.

Wayland being ill, Berrie insists that he sleep in the tent. The supervisor doesn't return. They break camp. Wayland is used up on the trail.

They reach the empty cabin of Tony, a ranger. Next day Mr. Moore, a lumberman, his daughter Bessie and a notorious gossip, Mrs. Belden, pass. Norcross admits he is the son of a wealthy lumberman.

CHAPTER X.

Further Perplexities.

PERPLEXITY: Wayland's return, long weakness, Berrie insisted on his lying down again while she set to work preparing dinner. "There is no telling when father will get here," she said. "And Tony will be hungry when he comes. Lie down and rest."

He obeyed her silently and, going to the bunk, at once fell asleep. How long he slept he could not tell, but he was awakened by the voice of the ranger, who was standing in the doorway and regarding Berrie with a round-eyed stare.

He was a tall, awkward fellow of about thirty-five, plainly of the frontier type, but a man of intelligence. At the end of a brief explanation Berrie said, with an air of authority: "Now you'd better ride up the trail and bring our camp outfit down. We can't go back that way anyhow."

The ranger glanced toward Wayland. "All right, Miss Berrie, but perhaps your tenderfoot needs a doctor."

Wayland rose painfully, but resolutely. "Oh, no, I am not sick. I'm a little lame, that's all. I'll go along with you."

The Supervisor Waved His Hand.

"No," said Berrie decisively. "You're not well enough for that. Get up your horses, Tony, and by that time I'll have some dinner ready."

"All right, Miss Berrie," replied the man and turned away.

Hardly had he crossed the bridge on his way to the pasture when Berrie cried out, "There comes daddy."

Wayland joined her at the door and stood beside her watching the supervisor as he came zigzagging down the steep hill to the east with all his horses trailing behind him roped to gether head to tail.

"He's had to come round by Lost Lake," she exclaimed. "He'll be thro-ut and absolutely starved. Wahoor! she shouted in greeting, and the supervisor waved his hand.

There was something superb in the calm seat of the veteran as he slid down the slope. He kept his place in the saddle with the air of the rider to whom hunger, fatigue, windfalls and snowdrifts were all a part of the day's work, and when he reined in before the door and dropped from his horse he put his arm about his daughter's neck with quiet word: "I thought I'd find you here. How is everything?"

"All right, daddy. But what about you? Where have you been?"

"Clean back to Mill park. The blamed cayuses kept just ahead of me all the way."

"Poor old dad! And on top of that came the snow."

"Yes, and a whole hatful. I couldn't get back over the high pass. Had to go round by Lost Lake, and, to cap all. Old Luddy took a notion not to lead. Oh, I've had a peach of a time, but here I am. Have you seen Moore and his party?"

"Yes, they're in camp up the trail. He and Alec Belden and two women. Are you hungry?"

He turned a comical glance upon her. "Am I hungry? Sister, I am a wolf. Norcross, take my horses down to the pasture."

She hastened to interpose. "Let me do that, daddy. Mr. Norcross is badly used up. You see, we started down here late yesterday afternoon. It was raining and horribly muddy, and I took the wrong trail. The darkness caught us, and we didn't reach the station till nearly midnight."

Wayland acknowledged his weakness. "I guess I made a mistake, supervisor; I'm not fitted for this strenuous life."

McFarlane was quick to understand. "I didn't intend to pitchfork you into the forest life quite so suddenly," he said. "Don't give up yet awhile. You'll harden to it."

"Here comes Tony," said Berrie. "He'll look after the ponies."

Nevertheless Wayland went out, believing that Berrie wished to be alone with her father for a short time.

As he took his seat McFarlane said: "You stayed in camp till yesterday afternoon, did you?"

"Yes, we were expecting you every moment."

He saw nothing in this to remark upon. "Did it snow at the lake?"

"Yes, a little; it mostly rained."

"It stormed up on the divide like a January blizzard. When did Moore and his party arrive?"

"About 10 o'clock this morning."

"I'll ride right up and see them. What about the outfit? That's at the lake, I reckon?"

"Yes, I was just sending Tony after it. But, father, if you go up to Moore's camp don't say too much about what has happened. Don't tell them just when you took the back trail and just how long Wayland and I were in camp."

"Why not?"

She reddened with confusion. "It's cause—You know what an old gossip Mrs. Belden is. I don't want her to know. She's an awful talker, and our being together up there all that time will give her a chance."

A light broke in on the supervisor's brain. In the midst of his preoccupation as a forester he suddenly became the father. His eyes narrowed and his face darkened. "That's so. The old rip could make a whole lot of capital out of your being left in camp that way. At the same time I don't believe in dodging. The worst thing we could do would be to try to blind the trail. Was Tony here last night when you came?"

"No; he was down the valley after his mail."

His face darkened again. "That's another piece of bad luck too. How much does the old woman know at present?"

"Nothing at all."

"Didn't she cross examine you?"

"Sure she did, but Wayland side tracked her. Of course it only delays things. She'll know all about it sooner or later. She's great at putting two and two together. Two and two with her always make five."

McFarlane mused. "Cliff will be plumb crazy if she gets his ear first."

"I don't care anything about Cliff, daddy. I don't care what he thinks or does if he will only let Wayland alone."

"See here, daughter, you do seem to be terribly interested in this tourist."

"He's the finest man I ever knew, father."

He looked at her with tender, trusting glance. "He isn't your kind, daughter. He's a nice clean boy, but he's different. He don't belong in our world. He's only just stopping here. Don't forget that."

"I'm not forgetting that, daddy. I know he's different. That's why I like him." After a pause she added: "Nobody could have been nicer all through those days than he has been. He was like a brother."

McFarlane fixed a keen glance upon her. "Has he said anything to you? Did you come to an understanding?"

Her eyes fell. "Not the way you mean, daddy, but I think he—likes me. But do you know who he is? He's the son of W. W. Norcross, that big Michigan lumberman."

McFarlane started. "How do you know that?"

"Mr. Moore asked him if he was any relation to W. W. Norcross, and he said, 'Yes, a son.' You should have seen how that Moore girl changed her tune the moment he admitted that. She'd been very free with him up to that time. But when she found out he was a rich man's son she became as quiet and innocent as a kitten. I hate her! She's a deceitful snip!"

"Well, now, daughter, that being the case, it's all the more certain that he don't belong to our world, and you mustn't fix your mind on keeping him here."

"A girl can't help fixing her mind, daddy."

"Or changing it." He smiled a little. "You used to like Cliff. You liked him well enough to promise to marry him."

"I know I did. But I despise him now."

"Poor Cliff! But the thing we've got to guard against is old lady Belden's tongue. She and that Belden gang have it in for me, and all that has kept them from open war has been Cliff's relationship to you. They'll take a keen delight in making the worst of all this camping business."

McFarlane was now very grave. "I wish your mother was here this minute. I guess we had better cut out this timber cruise and go right back."

"No, you mustn't do that. That would only make more talk. Go on with your plans. I'll stay here with you. It won't take you but a couple of days to do the work, and Wayland needs the rest."

"But suppose Cliff hears of this business between you and Norcross and comes galloping over the ridge?"

"Well, let him. He has no claim on me."

He rose uneasily. "It's all mighty risky business, and it's my fault. I should never have permitted you to start on this trip."

"Don't you worry about me, daddy. I'll pull through somehow. Anybody that knows me will understand how little there is in—old lady Belden's gah. I've had a beautiful trip, and I won't let her nor anybody else spoil it for me."

Wayland was down on the bridge leaning over the rail listening to the song of the water.

McFarlane approached gravely, but when he spoke it was in his usual soft monotone. "Mr. Norcross," he began, with candid infection. "I am very sorry to say it, but I wish you and my daughter had never started on this trip."

"I know what you mean, supervisor. And I feel as you do about it. Of course none of us foresaw any such complication as this, but now that we are married up in it we'll have to make the best of it. No one of us is to blame. It was all accidental."

The youth's frank words and his sympathetic voice disarmed McFarlane completely. Even the slight resentment he felt melted away. "It's no use saying 'if,'" he remarked at length. "What we've got to meet is Seth Belden's report—Berrie has cut loose from Cliff, and he's red-headed already. When he drops on to this story, when he learns that I had to chase back after the horses and that you and Berrie were alone together for three days, he'll have a fine club to swing, and he'll swing it, and Alec will help him. They're all waiting a chance to get me, and they're mean enough to get me through my girl."

"What can I do?" asked Wayland.

McFarlane pondered. "I'll try to head off Maria Belden and I'll have a talk with Moore. He's a pretty reasonable chap."

"But you forget there's another tale bearer. Moore's daughter is with them."

"That's so. I'd forgotten her. Good Lord, we are in for it! There's no use trying to cover anything up."

Here was the place for Norcross to speak up and say, "Never mind, I'm going to ask Berrie to be my wife." But he couldn't do it. Something rose in his throat which prevented speech. A strange repugnance, a kind of sudden resentment at being forced into a declaration kept him silent, and McFarlane, disappointed, wondering and hurt, kept silence also.

Norcross was the first to speak. "Of course those who know your daughter will not listen for an instant to the story of an unclean old thing like Mrs. Belden."

"I'm not so sure about that," replied the father gloomily. "People always listen to such stories, and a girl always gets the worst of a situation like this. Berrie's been brought up to take care of herself, and she's kept clear of criticism so far, but with Cliff on edge and this old rip snooping around—His mind suddenly changed. "Your being the son of a rich man won't help any. Why didn't you tell me who you were?"

"I didn't think it necessary. What difference does it make? I have nothing to do with my father's business. His notions of forest speculation are not mine."

"It would have made a difference with me, and it might have made a difference with Berrie. She mightn't have been so free with you at the start if she'd known who you were. You looked sick and kind of lonesome, and that worked on her sympathy."

"I was sick and I was lonesome, and she has been very sweet and lovely to me, and it breaks my heart to think that her kindness and your friendship should bring all this trouble and suspicion upon her. Let's go up to the Moore camp and have it out with them. I'll make any statement you think best."

"I reckon the less said about it the better," responded the older man. "I'm going up to the camp, but not to talk about my daughter."

"How can you help it? They'll force the topic."

"If they do I'll force them to let it alone," retorted McFarlane, but he went away disappointed and sorrowful.

When the supervisor returned from the camp something in his manner revealed the fact that the situation had not improved.

"They forced me into a corner here said peevishly. "I fled out of one fight, but they know that you were here last night. Of course they were respectful enough so long as I had an eye on them, but their tongues are wagging now."

As bedtime drew near Berrie took a blanket and went to the corral, and Berrie insisted that her father and Wayland occupy the bunk.

Norcross protested, but the supervisor said: "Let her alone. She's better able to sleep on the floor than either of us."

This was perfectly true; but, in spite of his bruised and aching body, the youth would gladly have taken her place beside the stove. It seemed pitifully unjust that she should have this physical hardship in addition to her neediness of mind.

Hereafter a restless night, the most painful and broken she had known in all her life. She acknowledged that Bessie Moore was prettier and that she stood more nearly on Wayland's plane than herself, but the realization of this fact did not bring surrender. She was not of that temper. All her life she had been called upon to combat the elements, to hold her own amid rude men and inconsiderate women, and she had no intention of yielding her place to a pert coquette, no matter what the gossip might say.

"She shall not have her way with Wayland," she decided. "I know what she wants—she wants him at her side tomorrow. But I will not have it so. She is trying to get him away from me."

The more she dwelt on this the hotter her jealous fever burned. The floor on which she lay was full of knots. She could not lose herself in sleep, tired as she was. The planks no longer turned their soft spots to her flesh, and she rolled from side to side in torment.

Her plan of action was simple. "I shall go home tomorrow and take Wayland with me. I will not have him going with that girl; that's settled."

The hard trip of the day before had seemingly done him no permanent injury. On the contrary, a few hours' rest had almost restored him to his normal self. "Tomorrow he will be able to ride again." And this thought reconciled her to her hard bed. She did not look beyond the long, delicious day which they must spend in returning to the Springs.

She fell asleep at last and was awakened only by her father tinkering about the stove.

Mothers' Day next Sunday. The officers have arranged to bring to the service those who cannot walk, with automobiles kindly offered for the purpose.

Every seat was taken last Sunday in Mr. Burgess' Bible class. More chairs will be in readiness.

Various members of our church, who are in touch with mission work by letter, will report for mission work in India, China, Japan, Africa, and other mission fields at the mid-week prayer meeting Thursday night.

MADISON UNIVERSITY HONORS MISS LUCY ROBERTS.

From a Madison, (Wis.) paper we take the following:

"For the first time in the history of the Markham Graduate Traveling Fellowship, it has been awarded to two women, Miss Lucy T. Roberts, of Berea, Ky., and Miss Sara Beach of Connecticut, who take their doctor's degree at the coming commencement."

This fellowship is reserved exclusively for men and women of exceptional high intellectual attainments and great promise as productive scholars. The appointee must be a Ph.D., graduate of the University.

Miss Roberts will continue her studies by dint of her fellowship at the School for Classical Studies at Rome, Italy. Miss Beach goes to Zurich, Switzerland.

Miss Roberts is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. B. H. Roberts of the Union Church, and is somewhat known in Berea, though her visits have not been frequent. Miss Beach was their guest two summers ago.

MRS. ERNBERG ENTERTAINS HER FRIENDS.

On Friday night Mrs. Ernberg entertained a number of her friends at Boone Tavern in a substantial manner not soon to be forgotten in the form of a well planned and served dinner. After satisfying the physical appetites the party retired to the parlor and gave way to jest and jollity led off by the chief "fish" story teller of the party. The joys of the occasion were entered into by the following guests: The Rev. and Mrs. B. H. Roberts, Mr. and Miss Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Roberts, Mrs. Belmyer, of Chicago, Miss Cameron, Miss Kenyon, Mr. and Mrs. Wertenberger. All pronounced the occasion a most pleasant one.

Laws Would Do Away With the Pestiferous Fly

It would appear, from what we know of the life history of the common housefly and from what remedial experimentation has already been carried on, that it is perfectly feasible for cities and towns to so greatly reduce the numbers of these annoying and dangerous insects as to render them of comparatively slight account. The health departments of most of our cities have the authority to abate nuisances dangerous to health, and it is easy for the health authorities of any city to formulate rules concerning the construction and care of stables and the keeping and disposal of manure which, if enforced, will do away with the housefly nuisance.

GO TO SUNDAY SCHOOLBy ERNEST O. SELLERS
Director of Sunday School Course
Moody Bible InstituteTHE ROCKEFELLERS AND THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

BOTH the elder and the younger J. D. Rockefeller are active workers and supporters of the Sunday school movement. Mr. Rockefeller, senior, has been a life-long member of the Euclid Avenue Baptist church of Cleveland, where, for many years he was the active superintendent of the school and where he still holds the position of honorary superintendent. Mrs. Rockefeller, who recently died, was likewise actively in charge of the primary work and in her latter years was honorary superintendent of that department in the school at Cleveland. Their children were brought up in that school, played in the orchestra, taught classes and otherwise joined with their parents in supporting the work.

Mr. Rockefeller, junior, is the teacher of a celebrated men's class connected with the Fifth Avenue Baptist church of New York city, a class of the utmost democracy, enthusiastically recommended by all who attend it and are familiar with its methods of work. No other two men in American life are more closely observed and criticized than these and while no one will say that all of their acts are without fault, yet those who know them the most intimately have the least criticism to offer. The well-known labor leader, Mother Jones, has recently spoken most highly of the younger man after her famous interview with him in New York. No one has ever accused either of these men as being riotous, high livers or of engaging in the profligate vices of the very rich. Neither is given to sports, yachts, race horses or other methods frequently used to display and dispose of great wealth.

Of late Mr. Rockefeller, senior, has not given the same attention to the school as formerly, but he does make it his habit to attend briefly each Sunday and not infrequently speaks a word of advice or encouragement to the school as a whole. No one who knows either father or son to any limited degree personally, would ever accuse either of any ulterior motive in this matter, but will be convinced that each sees in the Sunday school work an opportunity to be of service to their fellow men.

Clean Up and Paint Up if You Desire Health

HAVE you joined the "Clean Up and Paint Up" movement? If not, get in line and march to the front ranks and be ready for duty. The royal battle of "Clean Up and Paint Up" will be fought all over the country. This movement has enlisted the aid of every one, young and old, the schools, the clubs, commercial organizations, municipalities and country communities.

One state wide campaign was started by the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs, which led to the issuing of the proclamation to "clean up and paint up" by Governor Withycombe and was followed by the appointing of a committee from the Portland chamber of commerce.

This committee inaugurated a publicity campaign of stupendous work and met with successful co-operation or the part of ministers and physicians throughout the state. That it has received true co-operation from the physicians is evidenced by the responses.

One physician indorsed the movement as follows: "It is much more exhilarating and encouraging to see clean, well kept yards and lawns, clean streets and buildings than to see dirty lawns and neglected buildings. The first example is exhilarating; the second is depressing. In which state of mind do you do your best work?"

Another physician said:

"Want to put the doctors out of business? With good water and a salubrious climate and an abundance of fresh food most of the doctors would be idle loafers. But I am with you just the same. I am having my house painted and lawn mowed, and when the painters get their stuff out I will flash out the garage."

Are you going to do the same? Take heed to the advice of the above physicians. It is vital that everything be made spick and span not only for showing off to the visitors that are coming to your town this summer, but for the sake of yourself, your family and surroundings.

On the night of Monday, May 8, the students from Jackson county organized themselves into what will be known as "The Berea Jackson County Club."

The purpose of the organization is to further educational, social and religious activities through the students from this county.

Mr. Durham presided over the meeting and the following students were elected as its officers:

President—Isaac Bowles, Tyner.
Vice-President—Bessie Click, Kerby Knob.

Secretary—Floa Sparks, Evergreen.

Treasurer—Stanley Powell, Kerby Knob.

SUNDAY NIGHT SERVICE.

United Chapel was held Sunday night on account of the illness of the Upper Chapel preacher, Doctor Raine. Doctor Roberts preached a powerful sermon on "The Unknown Choices of God." He brought out the fact that God has a plan for everyone. He calls them to his plans very suddenly sometimes as in the case of St. Paul. Not all of God's choices are known to man. Miss Olive Sinclair added much to the service by a vocal solo, "A Little Bit of Love."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR

The meeting of the Union Church Sunday night was led by Howard Benfield. The topic was "Consecration of Talents." Lee County Fiscal Court Meets
The Fiscal Court was in session several days last week to look into matters pertaining to the building of the new bridge across the Middle Fork and to receive the plans for the addition to the Courthouse.

The commissioners appointed to secure the plans for the bridge reported that they had not been able to have the proposed plans approved by the State Road Engineer.

The County Building Commission with a representative of a firm of architects met Saturday and presented to the court the plans which have been drawn. These plans, with certain changes, were adopted and the court directed that the Commission have the complete plans prepared and advertise for bids to be opened on June 5th. Under the order, the contract is not to exceed the sum of $13,000.

In view of the explicit treaty engagements with that government.

"We have treaty obligations as to the manner in which matters in dispute between the two governments are to be handled. We offered to assume mutually similar obligations with Germany, but the offer was declined. When, however, the subject in dispute is a continuing menace to American lives it is doubtful whether such obligations apply unless the menace is removed during the pendency of the proceedings."

Secretary Lansing's statement refers for the first time in the submarine negotiations to the "Bryan peace treaties," and indicates that, even if such a treaty were in force with Germany now, it could not well apply to the submarine issue unless Germany agreed to remove the "menace" while discussion was progressing.

So far as the president's basic demand that Germany immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of submarine warfare is concerned, the treaty would, it is explained, be useless.

The president's note to Germany, it is explained, is aimed at clearing up any misunderstanding which might arise from the vague, indefinite language of the German reply. The president seeks to accomplish this with the statement that the United States has noted the purpose of the Imperial government to impose upon submarine commanders the limitations or law "upon which the government of the recognized rules of international the United States has insisted."

There are some radical points of difference in the way the two governments interpret international law in the present submarine controversy and the president has judged it all important to pin the Imperial government down to admitting that the American view must prevail.

Eyes in a Portrait.

If a person's picture is taken with the eyes of the person looking directly into the lens or opening of the camera then the eyes in the picture will always be directly on and appear to follow whoever is looking at it. This is also true of paintings. If a subject being painted is posed so as to look directly at the painter and the artist paints the picture with the eyes so pointed then the eyes of the picture will follow you. When you are looking at a picture of a person and the eyes do not follow you you will know at once that he was not looking at the camera or artist when the picture was being taken or painted.

sweeping 15 miles inland on American soil, raided the little settlement of Glen Springs and attacked a detachment of American cavalry, consisting of nine men of Troop A, the Fourteenth Cavalry. Three troopers and a little ten-year-old boy were killed, two cavalymen were wounded and another is missing. He is believed to be a prisoner of the bandits, who are now fleeing southward into Coahuila, Mex.

Two American citizens, J. Deemer, and a man named Compton, according to reports received here, were carried across the Rio Grande, and reports have it that their throats were cut. A posse of 50 citizens of Marathon are in pursuit of the Villistas. The missing trooper is Private Roscoe Tyree. The little boy is the son of Compton.

He was deaf and dumb and bandits are thought to have killed him because he could not answer their questions. The two wounded troopers, Privates J. Birch and Frank Defree, were brought here badly wounded. Birch's body was filled with small brass pieces of tacks fired from a shotgun. Defree was burned about the head and shoulders.

IS NEAR AMERICAN COAST
Teutonic Warship Headed Toward America—French Liner Attacked.

New York.—Two German submarines of the latest type, conveyed by two armed auxiliary cruisers, may be within striking distance of the American coast. April 29 this fleet attacked the French liner Venezia when about 700 miles southeast of Cape Race, approximately 1,900 miles from New York in a direct line. The German fleet at that time was headed due west. The Venezia, which escaped by skillful maneuvering, arrived here. Capt. Boniface declined absolutely to discuss the affair. From various members of the crew, however, the story was gradually obtained. Only one unit of the German fleet attacked the Venezia. The other armed cruiser and submarines continued on their westerly course. They probably are, by this time, within a day's run of the American coast.

Turns Down Big Army Plan
House Rejects Senate Bill For Regular Army of 250,000 Men.

Washington, May 9.—Efforts to bridge the gap that exists between the house and senate on the subject of military preparedness failed in the house. The house rejected the provision in the senate bill for a standing army of 250,000 men by a vote of 221 to 142. It also rejected the senate provision for a volunteer army by 251 to 109.

It approved a substitute for the senate provision for the erection of a nitrate plant. This authorizes the president to determine the most economical means of making nitrates and authorize $20,000,000 for the erection of a plant.

Surplus nitrates not required by the army and navy may be disposed of to farmers in the form of fertilizer, enlarging the government ownership aspect of the undertaking.

Conducted by Mr. Robert F. Spence, Farm Demonstrator and Special Investigator

CONWAY FARMERS

What the farmers are doing at Conway is a credit to any community. They are growing the following crops under special methods: cowpeas, soy beans, strawberries, wheat, winter oats, potatoes, stock beets, carrots, mangles, buckwheat, corn and rape. The women are very much interested in such work as chickens, eggs, ducks, turkeys and the garden. The Club has as many like 25 acres in ash potatoes, 6 acres of strawberries, put out this year; soy beans, being introduced at Conway for the first time; stock beets, carrots and mangles are being grown for the first time at Conway. Both men and women are very much interested in the preparation and the cultivation of gardens. They are having more cloths washed and thoroughly pulverized soil than ever before. There are flocks of pure-bred birds, and it seems that the women at Conway have learned the secret of caring for their hens in order to get the biggest egg production.

The meeting last Saturday afternoon was one that will long be remembered. Both men and women took an active part and told just what they had done and what they are doing, and what they are going to do. It is one of the most interesting meetings that has ever been held at Conway. The farmers at this meeting organized themselves into a Corn Growing Contest, each farmer growing one acre of corn. The one producing the biggest yield gets a prize of $25; second, $10, and so on down to the fourth prize. They are very enthusiastic about this contest.

One of the most interesting but yet common subjects discussed was "The Smashing of Clods." This subject is a big one, but from the way the farmers handled it at this meeting, it looked very insignificant to them by the time they got thru with it.

All communities should cooperate and unite themselves in such a spirit of harmony and sympathy and love for their community circle, as the Conway people have. The time is being hoped for when each community will have the Farmers' Community Improvement Club, both for men and women, and boys and girls.

GENERAL

There is a bright prospect for good crops this year. It is interesting to see the improvement on home garden and farm. It is enough to cause the busiest of the busy to prick up their ears and look forward. The preparation has been better than years before. There has been lots of seed testing carried out, planning of rotation of crops, reclaiming pasture lands, and the chance of better stock. All this has been going on in this section, and it is inspiring to the travelers and business men of towns and cities.

BEREA CORN SHOW AND FAIR

Don't forget that in October we have one of the biggest and best corn shows and fairs ever held in this section of the country. It will be held on the campus of Berea College at the Tabernacle. There will be prizes awarded for all of home garden and farm products.

You want to grow the biggest and the best, and bring it and place it on exhibit, and show your neighbors and friends what you have done and what can be done in this country.

EVERY FARMER SHOULD READ SOIL FERTILITY BULLETIN

Bulletin 191 on Soil Fertility recently issued by the Kentucky Experiment Station should be read by every farmer in the State, advises George Roberts, Head of the Agronomy Department. This bulletin not only discusses the fundamental principles of soil fertility, but it gives the results of experiments made in many different parts of the State to determine the requirements for restoring and maintaining fertility.

By a study of this bulletin farmers will learn that they have been spending money for elements of plant food in commercial fertilizers which they did not need to buy and have not been buying enough of the elements in which the soils were deficient. It shows how inadequate the ordinary use of commercial fertilizers is for maintaining fertility. This bulletin may be obtained free upon application to the Kentucky Experiment Station, Lexington, Ky.

ernment engineers, the concrete road is put in for all the walls. Complete plans may be had from the office of public roads and rural engineering, department of agriculture, Washington.

THE FARMERS' CLUB

The farmers' club is a small thing in itself, but through its influence in bringing about community effort and a desire for community improvement it is one of the very strongest factors for improvement. The organization of a farmers' club is not difficult. Two people co-operating can do many things that neither can do alone. Four farmers co-operating can get many advantages in production, in marketing and in the purchase of supplies that one of them cannot have alone. Some of the strongest farmers' clubs have started with but three or four members, but by showing the power of united effort have gradually increased their membership until some of these clubs now have a hundred or more members.

WHAT IS FARM MANAGEMENT?

Branch of Agricultural Science Defined by Department of Agriculture. (Prepared by United States Department of Agriculture.)

The farm management investigator gets his information direct from the farmer. The solution of many of the practical problems of agriculture are found to have already been solved generations ago by large groups of farmers; particularly is it true of farm management and organization. Every farmer is of necessity more or less an experimenter. The results of thousands of such experiments gathered by the farm management investigator, classified and interpreted in their bearing on the community's problems and on the individual farm's problems, yield not only many fundamental broadly applicable principles of good farm organization, but also show in more or less detail in just what respect a successfully operated farm differs from one which is a failure or only moderately successful.

In previous decades the agricultural investigator largely concerned himself with the study of how to accomplish certain ends—how best to feed a pig or a cow, how best to raise potatoes or fruit. The farm management investigator is concerned with determining whether to keep cows or pigs, whether to raise fruit or potatoes, and if an industry is found to be desirable to what extent it should enter into the farm organization and with what intensity it should be pursued. All of these problems have in the aggregate been solved by the farmers. Farm management is merely a science for classifying and interpreting the collective experience of the farming people as to what constitutes business efficiency in farming.

Farm management considers farming as a business. It attempts to analyze the various factors having to do with the success or failure of that business as it is found conducted on the individual farm, and in so far as possible to determine the broad outstanding factors for efficiency which admit of general application for a region.

Rape With Rye.
If in the spring your stand of rye is a little thin sow four or five pounds of rapeseed per acre early and afterward give one or two strokes with the harrow. There need be but little fear of dragging out the rye, as the crop is deeply rooted, and the harrow will have but little injurious effect. Of course, if the rye is pastured close the young rape plants will be nipped off when they are very tender, and this may interfere with a rank summer or fall growth; but, on the other hand, if the rye is not pastured too closely the rape in all likelihood will make a fair, it straws stand.

James Whitcomb Riley

Nobody on the old farm here but Mother, me and John, Except, of course, the extra help when harvest-time comes on— And then, I want to say to you, we needed help about, As you'd admit, if you'd a-seen the way the crops turned out.

A better quarter-section ner a richer soil wasn't found Than this here old-home place o' ours fer fifty miles around!— The house was small—but plenty big we found it from the day That John—our only livin' son—packed up and went away.

You see, we tuk sich pride in John—his mother more'n me— That's natural; but both of us was proud as proud could be; Fer the boy, from a little chap, was most uncommon bright, And seemed in work as well as play to take the same delight.

He alus went a-whistlin' round the place, as glad at heart As robins up at five o'clock to git an airy start;

And many a time 'fore daylight Mother's waked me up to say— "Jest listen, David!—listen!—John—ny's beat the birds today!"

High-spirited from boyhood, with a most inquirin' turn,— He wanted to learn ever' thing on earth they was to learn;

He'd ask more plaguy questions in a mortal-minute here Than his grandpap in Paradise could answer in a year!

And read! w'y, his own mother learnt him to read and spell; And "The Children of the Abbey"—w'y, he knowed that book as well.

At fifteen as his parents!—and "The Pilgrim's Progress," too— Jest knuckled down, and the shaver did, and read 'em through and through!

At eighteen, Mother 'lowed the boy must have a better chance— That we ort to educate him, under any circumstance;

And John he fined his mother, and they ding-donged and kep' on, Tel I sent him off to school in town, half glad that he was gone.

But—I missed him—w'y, of course I did!—The Fall and Winter through I never built the kitchen-fire, or split a stick in two,

Er fed the stock, er butchered, er swung up a gambrel-pin; But what I thought o' John, and wished that he was home ag'in.

He'd come, sometimes—on Sunday's most—and stay the Sunday out; And on Thanksgiving-Day he 'peared to like to be about;

But a change was workin' on him—he was stiffer than before, And didn't joke, ner laugh, ner sing and whistle any more.

And his talk was all so proper; and I noticed, with a sigh, He was tryin' to raise side-whiskers, and had on a striped tie,

And a standin'-collar, ironed up as stiff and slick as a bone; And a breast-pin, and a watch and chain and plug-hat of his own.

But when Spring-weather opened out, and John was to come home And he'd me through the season, I was glad to see him come;

But my happiness, that evening, with the settin' sun went down, When he bragged of "a position" that was offered him in town.

"But," says I, "you'll not accept it?" "W'y, of course I will," says he,—

"This drudgin' on a farm," he says, "Is not the life fer me; I've set my stakes up higher," he continued, light and gay, "And town's the place fer me, and I'm a-goin' right away!"

And go he did!—his mother clingin' to him at the gate, A-pleadin' and a-cryin'; but it hadn't any weight.

I was tranquil, and told her "I wasn't no use to worry so, And onclapped her arms from around his neck round mine—and let him go!"

I felt a little bitter feelin' festerin' round about The aidges of my conscience; but I didn't let it out;— I simply cetch out, trimbly-like, and tuk the boy's hand,

And though I didn't say a word, I knowed he'd understand.

And—well!—sence then the old home here was mighty lonesome, shore!

With me a-workin' in the field, and Mother at the door, Her face forever to'lds the town, and fadin' more and more— Her only son nine miles away, a-clerkin' in a store!

This is a very sad picture. There are very few things sadder than to see the old father and mother whose tottering steps need the support of the strong, whose failing vision needs the keen sight of the young and whose increasing feebleness and timidity need the sheltering care of love, neglected by the children for whom they sacrificed in the best years of their lives. Far worse than feebleness and facing the gathering dimness alone is the pain of the cruel neglect from those for whom their hearts yearn.

Yet I cannot but think that if those parents had given John the right sort of an education they might have had him at home with them, contented to the end, if parents give their children the sort of an education that makes them dissatisfied with country life while it does not help them to make that life any better it is not strange, tho it may be cruel, for them to leave home.

If John's father had given him a course in one of the good agricultural schools where he could have learned to work in intelligent harmony with the bountiful forces of Nature he would never have thought of leaving home.

If they had re-enforced the love he had for farm work with the inspiration of a knowledge of all the science that underlies it and which will make it profitable he would have sung and whistled and enjoyed it to the end.

In the same way if "the only living child" had been a girl—had been Jane instead of John—her attitude toward the home would have been effected by the education she received.

If she had had a good Home Science course she would have taken an interest in homemaking but she would also have known many things by which she could add to her income in the country giving her success and independence.

Isn't it worth while for you fathers and mothers to think of these things? What will the sort of an education you are giving your children lead to?

A CABINET LADY.

Wife of New Secretary of War, Newton D. Baker.

BOUND FOR WASHINGTON.

The Newest Member of the President's Cabinet Brings a Wife and Three Charming Children to Grace Social Circles at Our Capital.

Once the wife of the mayor of Cleveland, Mrs. Baker is now presented to the cabinet ladies at Washington. Born Miss Elizabeth Wells Leopold, daughter of Howard Leopold, a retired merchant of Pottstown, Pa., Mrs. Baker was for several years an instructor in music at Wilson college.

MRS. NEWTON D. BAKER.

Chambersburg, Pa., of which she is a graduate. She married Mr. Baker July 3, 1902.

As well as being a talented soprano singer and pianist, Mrs. Baker is also the mother of three interesting children—Betty, the oldest; Newton D. Baker 3d, alias "Junior," and Peggy, the baby.

Politically, then, intellectually and artistically, Mrs. Baker is well fitted to assume the responsibilities of her position in the social life to which our new secretary of war brings her.

VARIOUS INITIALS.

Hints About Marking Child's Garments So They Won't Mix.

One can buy in the various stores initials by the yard, worked in red or blue outline stitch on narrow strips of linen tape, three-eighths or a half inch wide.

These letters are used for marking plain underclothing, etc. They are of great use to the mother with a large family, who has neither money nor time to spare on embroidery and who finds it necessary to have some distinguishing mark on the clothing, especially when there are two children the same size.

The letters are cut off from the strip when needed and overcast on the inside of the garment, any place where it will be invisible when worn.

When this system is used even stockings are easily paired. Sew each child's initial at the top of the stocking on the inside; then put a cross stitch in red under the letter on each stocking of the first pair. Use a blue cross stitch on the second, yellow on the third, etc.

It is an easy matter to sort even a large pile of stockings, two M's with red crosses being a pair of Mary's stockings, two M's with green crosses another pair, while two J's with blue crosses are a pair of stockings belonging to Jack.

If two children have the same initial use the blue letters for one and red for the other.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SELLERS, Acting Director of Sunday School Course of the Moody
Bible Institute, Chicago.)
(Copyright, 1916, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR MAY 14

"LO, WE TURN TO THE GENTILES."

LESSON TEXT—Acts 12:13-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—I have set thee for a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the uttermost part of the earth.—Acts 13:47.

In the unfolding and ever-widening of the program of power we are again confronted with a crucial event. It is suggestive that at this time Paul,
whose name has just been changed from Saul, now assumes his place of leadership, succeeding Barnabas. Per-go, the capital of Pamphylia, was on the southern coast of Asia Minor, and Antioch, the capital of Pisidia (southern Galatia) was 90 miles north. Paul is now in full control and no other man save our Lord has so deeply impressed human history.

I. Paul's Opening (vv. 13-15). We are not told why John Mark returned to Jerusalem. He may have objected to the changed leadership; there may have been sickness involved; as a Jew
he may have objected to Paul's actions. His subsequent missionary zeal restored him to Paul's favor (II. Tim.
4:11). Departing from Perga (v. 14), perhaps on account of an attack of fever (Gal. 4:13, 14), the party ascended to the higher altitude of the important city of Antioch, the site of which is now marked by extensive and impressive ruins. After finding lodgings they repaired to the synagogue on the Sabbath day. Here they could meet the people and would be given opportunity to speak of Jesus. Paul put himself in the way of opportunity and opportunity to beckoned to him. They did not demand this privilege because they were Christian workers. Their participation in the service and other actions commended them to the respect of the leaders of the synagogue,
which was the great democratic forum
of the Jewish nation.

II. Paul's Sermon (vv. 16-41). Paul began his remarks, even as Peter did at Pentecost, by quoting the Old Testament and referring to Jewish history, using the same to lead up to his testimony about Jesus. (Matt. 5:17.)
"It is ours to show wherein Christ fulfilled the law, the obligation resting upon us by reason of his covenant of grace, and the blessings which issue therefrom." This is one of Paul's three recorded missionary sermons (see also Acts 14:15-18; 17:22-31). The last two were to Gentiles only. This is a scriptural discourse. (1) Messiah's people and ancestry (17:23); (2) Mes-siah's forerunner (24, 25); Messiah rejected (26-29); (4) Messiah risen from the dead (30-37); (5) Jesus the Justifier (38-39); (6) the application, a word of warning (40, 41). There must have been some evidence of restlessness in his audience, hence his sharp warning (41).

III. Paul's Decision (vv. 42-47). After the separation of Jews from Greek proselytes the latter besought Paul to continue his testimony literally "the Sabbath between," perhaps at the mid-week meetings. Questions and discussions were the order in the breaking up of the synagogue service, and as Paul and his company departed they were accompanied by some who had believed (v. 43). Knowing the testing which would follow, Paul and Barnabas did personal work with these, exhorting to steadfastness (John 8:31, 32; Col. 1:23) in the grace of God
(v. 38, 39; Rom. 3:24; Eph. 2:8). It is only in grace that any are able to "continue" (Rom. 5:2; Gal. 5:1, 4).
It is personal work which gathers a crowd and such was the method of Paul and Barnabas during the intervening week. So well was the work done and so great was the power of their testimony that "almost the whole city" gathered the next Sabbath to "hear the Word of God." Such evident interest in this new teaching aroused the jealousy of the Jews. Years of Jewish proselyting had never secured such a result as this one address of a doubtful stranger produced. But back of this jealousy was the greater sin of unbelief. To hear the Word of God (II. Titus 4:2; I. Thess. 2:13) does not necessarily produce obedience and faith (Luke 8:5-7); not always the greatest number of hearers will produce the greatest number of conversions. To interrupt a speaker is not unknown in synagogues today. The opponents "contradicted and blas-phemed," doubtless contending that all who hang on a tree are accursed (Gal. 3:13) and they produced a wild tempest of voices and confusion. Only to attack and to destroy the work of Paul and Barnabas could save these Jewish leaders. Human nature is the same everywhere.

Paul and Barnabas thrived upon opposition. We believe they foresaw this development and were prepared for the emergency (v. 46). Because of long training the Jews were best fitted to receive the Gospel. It was no accident that the first apostles were Jews, but it is serious business to reject the Christ, and the history of the Jewish nation since rejecting Jesus has been written in blood and tears.
Paul's "Lo we turn" (v. 46) marked the Rubicon of spiritual history. Christianity is to become world wide, not by means of the Jews, but in spite of them.

For Young Folks

Taking Pictures on the Sand at Palm Beach.

Palm Beach, Fla., is the winter playground of many society folks from
New York and other northern cities.
By going south they miss the joys of winter, such as skating, coasting, snow-balling and other healthful sports.
Most of our young northerners, if they had their choice, would prefer to stay where the snow blows rather than spend it where the sun shines warmly
all the time. That makes two summers in one year, which is almost too much of a good thing. The pure, bracing breezes of our northern climate put roses in the cheeks of the little people who brave its nipping frost. But we can't all think alike, so many enjoy the balmy breezes of the southland.
The boy with the camera taking pictures in the sand is Master Jack Rutherford of New York. He seems to be having a good time and perhaps did not observe the camera man who turned the tables on him by snapping his photograph.

Feeding the Birds.

Whenever boy scouts take a winter
hike a chance offers for that good turn to be done. By taking along a few pounds of cornmeal or a bagful of breadcrumbs and scattering some here and there in sheltered spots in the woods for the birds a great deal of substantial comfort and happiness may be given. After heavy snows, when fallen weed seeds and insects are covered up, or especially after sleet storms, when everything edible is coated over beyond possible finding for several days, many a little feathered "tummy" gets empty, and birds, with their excessive vitality and the necessity of keeping up a high normal temperature, are quickly weakened by lack of food and fall victims to resulting cold. It is not a rare thing to find many small sojourners in the winter
woods frozen to death after a cold snap.

Boy Scouts Honor Anniversary.

Nearly 150,000 boys, members of the 7,375 troops of the Boy Scouts of America, assembled in special troop meeting on the evening of Feb. 8, in honor of the sixth anniversary of the incorporation of the boy scout movement in the United States. Promptly at 8:15 o'clock every scout stood at attention and repeated the scout oath:

On my honor I will do my best—
1. To do my duty to God and my country and to obey the scout law.
2. To help other people at all times.
3. To keep myself physically strong,
mentally awake and morally straight.

Questions and Answers.

The following is an amusing game:
Each player writes a question. On another slip of paper he writes an answer to the question. The questions are collected and put in a hat. Then the answers are collected and put in a different hat. Both are well shaken. Then each player draws a question and an answer. The result is very funny. For instance:

"Do you like roses?"
"Yes, with mustard."
"Do you like roast beef?"
"Those that smell nice."

Not Fair.

"Say, Boh," asked George, "is it true that schoolteachers get paid?"
"Certainly it is," said Hob.
"Well, then," George said indignantly,
"that ain't right. Why should the teachers get paid when we kids do all the work?"

The New Dress.

I've a new dress, don't you see,
Robin redbreast in the tree?
Tell me what you think of it!
Do you like it? Does it fit?

Don't you wish you wore a dress
Instead of feathers? Now, confess!
Feathers are such funny things.
I could never use your wings.

Still I guess they suit you best,
Just as all girls should be dressed
As I am, so do not mind.
If you think I've been unkind.

Questions Answered

BEREA, FRIEND OF WORKING STUDENTS. Berea College with its affiliated schools, is not a money-making institution. It requires certain fees, but it expends many thousands of dollars each year for the benefit of its students, giving highest advantages at lowest cost, and arranging as far as possible for students to earn and save in every way.

OUR SCHOOL IS LIKE A FAMILY, with careful regulations to protect the character and reputation of the young people. Our students come from the best families and are earnest to do well and improve.
For any who may be sick the College provides doctor and nurse without extra charge.

All except those with parents in Berea live in College buildings, and many assist in work of boarding hall, farm and shops, receiving valuable training and getting pay according to the value of their labor. Except in winter it is expected that all will have a chance to earn a part of their expenses. Write to the Secretary before coming to secure employment.

PERSONAL EXPENSES for clothing, laundry, postage, books, etc., vary with different people. Berea favors plain clothing. Our climate is the best, but as students must attend classes regardless of the weather, warm wraps and underclothing, umbrellas and overcoats are necessary.
THE CO-OPERATIVE STORE furnishes books, toilet articles, work uniforms, umbrellas and other necessary articles at cost.

LIVING EXPENSES are really below cost. The College asks no rent for the fine buildings in which students live, charging only enough room rent to pay for cleaning, repairs, fuel, lights, and washing of bedding and towels. For table board, without coffee or extras, $1.35 a week, in the fall, and $1.50 in winter; for furnished room, with fuel, lights, washing of bedding, 40 to 60 cents for each person.

SCHOOL FEES are two. First a "DOLLAR DEPOSIT," as guarantee for return of room key, library books, etc. This is paid but once, and is returned when the student departs.

Second an "INCIDENTAL FEE" to help on expenses for care of school buildings, hospital, library, etc. (Students pay nothing for tuition or service of teachers—all our instruction is a free gift). The Incidental Fee for Foundation and Vocational students is $5.00 a term;
in Academy and Normal $6.00 and $7.00 in Collegiate courses.

PAYMENT MUST BE IN ADVANCE, incidental fee and room rent
by the term, board by the half term. Installments are as follows:

	SPRING TERM *VOCATIONAL AND FOUNDATION SCHOOLS	ACADEMY AND NORMAL	COLLEGE
Incidental Fee . . . . .	$ 5.00	$ 6.00	$ 7.00
Room . . . . .	4.00	5.00	5.00
Board, 5 weeks . . . . .	6.75	6.75	6.75
Amount due March 29, 1916 . . .	$15.75	$17.75	$19.75
Board 5 weeks, due May 3, 1916 .	6.75	6.75	6.75
Total for term . . . . .	$22.50	$24.50	$26.50

Applicants must bring or send a testimonial showing that they are above 16 years old, in good health, and of good character. This may be signed by some former Berea student or some reliable teacher or neighbor. The use of tobacco is strictly forbidden.

Spring Term opens March 29th. Hurry! If you don't get in at the beginning of the term it will be too late to enter classes this Spring.
Don't come unless room is engaged by a dollar sent to your friend, the Secretary.

*Commerce extra fees. See cata-log pages 38 and 39.

"VETERANS FIRST" IS OFFICIAL SLOGAN CONFEDERATE REUNION IN BIRMINGHAM

View of a few Birmingham Skyscrapers, where the Confederate Veterans meat May 16, 17 and 18.

"Veterans first."

This is the slogan that has been adopted by the entertainment committee of Birmingham, Alabama, for the forthcoming reunion of the Confederate Veterans to be held in Birmingham May 16-18. The veterans that bared their breasts to the cannons' merciless fire during the late unpleasantness will be cared for above all other considerations. Everything has been planned and all other propositions set aside in order that the Birmingham reunion, which may be the last ever held here, will go down in history as one wherein everyone exhibited the keenest interest and care of the heroes of 1860-65.

The committees in charge of the reunion have progressed admirably with their work. Only the barest details remain to be lined out to make the Birmingham gathering memorable in the history of Confederate reunions.
The hospitality of 1908, when Birmingham welcomed the Confederate hosts,
will be greatly excelled by the character of the hospitality and the warmth of greetings to be offered the veterans in May.

Through the kindness of the government of the United States the committee has secured the loan of over 6000
cots, which will be placed in the magnificent buildings at the state fair grounds for the veterans who will accept the care and complete hospitality of the City of Birmingham. The veterans will be provided with every convenience. A commissary in charge of experts in the several necessary departments will be maintained. The camp grounds are accessible by several car lines from the center of the city. It is contemplated that the official camp grounds will be the rendezvous for a majority of the veterans visiting Birmingham.

That every detail looking to their comfort and care will be exercised, was indicated by Morris W. Bush,
president of the Chamber of Commerce,
who announced that the cool, airy buildings will be arranged so as to be perfectly comfortable for the heroes that are expected. The food will be the best and every function exercised to provide every necessity.

Aside from the magnificent care
which will be showered upon the veterans at the camp grounds extensive plans have been arranged for their entertainment. The parade will be composed of automobiles and automobile trucks so that every veteran that cares to may ride during the parade. This will relieve the veterans, many of them feeble, of the cruel necessity of walking during the long parade.

Two Classes.
To the pedestrian humanity seems to be divided into two classes—the careless and the careful.—Judge.

Ruskin on Shakespeare.
Ruskin said that in all the works of Shakespeare he had no heroes, but only heroines.

A LAND OF EVERY LAND THE PRIDE

There is a land of every land the pride,
Beloved of Heaven o'er all the world beside;
Where brighter suns dispense serener light,
And milder moons imparadise the night.
A land of beauty, virtue, valor, truth,
Time-tutored age, and love-exalted youth,
The wandering mariner, whose eye explores
The wealthiest isles, the most enchanting shores,
Views not a realm so beautiful and fair,
Nor breathes the spirit of a purer air;
In every clime the magnet of his soul,
Touched by remembrance trembles to that pole;
For in this land of Heaven's peculiar grace,
The heritage of a nature's noblest race,
There is a spot of earth supremely blest,
A dearer, sweeter spot than all the rest.
Where man, creation's tyrant, casts aside
His sword and sceptre, pageantry and pride,
While in his softened looks benignly blend
The sire, the son, the husband, brother, friend.

Here woman reigns, the mother, daughter, wife
Strews with fresh flowers the narrow way of life;
In the clear heaven of her delightful eye,
An angel guard of loves and graces lie;
Around her knees domestic duties meet,
And fireside pleasures gambol at her feet.
Where shall that land, that spot of earth be found?
Art thou a man? a patriot? look around!
Oh! thou shalt find, how'er thy footsteps roam,
That land thy country, and that spot thy home.
Man, through all ages of revolving time,
Unchanging man, in every varying clime,
Deems his own land of every land the pride,
Beloved by Heaven o'er all the world beside;
His home the spot of earth supremely blest,
A dearer, sweeter spot than all the rest.

Then He Made a Home Run.
He—What kind of stone would you like in the ring, darling? She—Oh, Jack, dear, I've heard so much about baseball diamonds. Do you suppose they are very expensive?—Boston Transcript.

True.
"It's a queer world."
"What's the matter now?"
"I was just thinking that one-half of it is always doing its best to get the other half of it into debt."—Detroit Free Press.

Which Do You Prefer?

It is important for reasons of health and practical economy for every housekeeper to ask herself this question:

"Do I prefer a pure baking powder like Royal, made of cream of tartar derived from grapes, or am I willing to use a baking powder made of alum or phosphate, both derived from mineral sources?"

The names of the ingredients printed on the label show whether the kind you are now using or any brand, new or old, that may be offered is a genuine cream of tartar powder, or merely a phosphate or alum compound.

Royal Baking Powder contains no alum nor phosphate.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

Josh Devore, National League
Outfielder.

Josh Devore, who is on the roster of the Philadelphia National league baseball club for the season of 1916, has had the good fortune during his career of being, in on the money in three championship contests. He played with the New York Giants in 1911 and 1912 when they captured the National pennants for those years. He started in the season of 1913 with the Giants, but was released to Cincinnati during the season, subsequently going to Philadelphia. The next year, however, he was with the victorious George Stallings' Boston Braves, thus copping the extra money in three National league races. Josh usually plays left field and is a good batter.

Motorboat Racing Rule.

The interpretation of the rule of the American Power Boat association defining an amateur in motorboat racing is a matter that is engaging the attention of the racing commission of the association. That organization has set its face against professionalism in motorboat racing and especially as regards the sanctioned races of the association. Its rule on the subject reads in part as follows:

"No person who has followed the sea as a means of livelihood (except naval officers or members of naval militia) or who has accepted remuneration for services in handling or serving on a yacht or motorboat . . . shall be considered an amateur."

Kolehmainen Invited to Race.

Hannes Kolehmainen, who has been recovering his lost form through diligent training in New York city, has been invited by William Linnack of San Francisco to visit the Golden Gate city next summer to compete in the annual race up Mount Tamalpais, known as the "mountain climb." Although the total distance is only four and a half miles, it requires great stamina for any athlete to complete the route. Last year the event was won by Oliver Millard, the representative of the Olympic club, who gave Kolehmainen one of the hardest races of his career in the five mile national championship at the Panama-Pacific exposition.
